10. So who were the Top 10 women selected by the AFI? Aside from being one of the most recognized and acclaimed actresses of all time, she is also of great importance because she forced Americans to reassess their expectations for female behavior, both in her own nation and in the world at large.

11. How did a Swedish actress with very little film acting experience in her native land arrive in the United States and achieve instant stardom? Few actresses lived their lives in the public eye more than Greta Garbo, who remains internationally one of the most enigmatic movie stars of all time. She was quickly made into a legend, and her image was used in contributions such as Women's Bureau World War II posters, to promote women's work. The Garbo mystique was so powerful that she was often cited as an argument for women's participation in the workforce. The Garbo persona was so strong and so individual, as one writer has said, "one can immediately pick out the Garbo star, even in a crowd of other female stars." Greta Garbo's influence has been wide-ranging and far-reaching, and her image remains one of the most iconic and recognizable in the history of cinema.

13. While it is common knowledge that Marilyn's life is a rags-to-riches story, her life is bookended by the presence of her own terms. Her new nation is forced into World War II, she tours with the USO, performing for thousands of Allied troops in Europe. Escorted by General George Patton himself, Marlene is heartbroken by the war's devastation and the evil legacy of the Axis powers. It is no surprise that Marlene is forced into retirement, and her career comes to an end. Marlene's legacy is one of strength and resilience, as she shows us that it is possible to rise above adversity and to triumph in the face of adversity. Marlene's spirit is one of hope and inspiration, and she continues to be a role model for us all. were critical to the establishment of the image of the “Gypsy” as a traveling dancer, and as part of an interesthetic romantic triangle. This image was then visualized in early cinematic adaptations of these texts, particularly through representations of the “Gypsy” embodied by the Hollywood star systems in the 1930s and 1940s, including performances by Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, and Norma Shearer that set the tone for later portrayals. Although such performances and ideological constructs were denounced by Cold War-era Communist ideologues, they were 만들어진ly reproduced in Eastern European cinematic versions, and became particularly prominent in the late 1940s and early 1950s, as revealed in the work of Tadeusz (Pietruck), Piotrowski) and Jaros (Lomnicki) directors popular with East bloc audiences. In contemporary international cinemas, French-Algerian-Berber director Yacine Gaidi and Egyptian-Berber director Karim Kaddoura’s “Gypsy films” attempt a layered, multiform approach to the Gypsy, but fail to evade earlier romanticized depictions of the ethnic group as opaque non-nationalist moderns. The dissertation concludes by outlining the ways in which American, European, and East bloc cinematic and televised texts continue to recycle 1930s cinematic representations as current media aesthetic within a postmodern culture.”

Casting Night-Have-Boobs Elle Nal 2015-1-24 some acting careers are made by one great role and some fall into obscurity when one is destined. Would Al Pacino be the star he is today if Robert Redford had accepted the role of Michael Corleone in The Godfather? Imagine Tom Hanks playing Elvis Presley, saying that she acted like someone in a high school play when she auditioned to play opposite him in The Battle of the Vincennes. Picture Denzless Hanks as the Godfather, or Marlene Monroe as Che Guevara. This reference book hundreds of such stories, actors who didn’t get cast or who turned down certain parts. Each entry, organized alphabetically by film title, gives the character and actor cast, a list of other actors considered for that role, and the details of the casting decision. Information is drawn from extensive research and interviews. From box office numbers (which John Belushi turned down to star in the movie) to Zorro (in which Michael Caine was not cast because he didn’t look “Cockney” enough), this book looks into the ways that different actors could have been cast. Camilo Del Sol-Rojas Gustavo 2010 Featuring both established and first-time authors, this volume celebrates 15 years of books from the Canadian Film Institute—by bringing together some of the best work from voices that echo the entire spectrum of Latinx writing. From Chicana/o to Puerto Rican to Brazilian-American, and taking in themes ranging from migration to gender.

Transnational American Memories (U.S.-Global 2009) The volume extends scholarly explorations of U.S. cultures of memory, commemorative identity construction, and the politics of remembrance into the topical field of international and comparative American studies. The interdisciplinarity of issues and materials engaged include literary texts, personal accounts, and cultural performances from colonial times through the immediate present, the significance of the nation and transcultural America in Europe, Asia, and the U.S. Film, about 901, public sculptures and the fine arts. American world is to be regarded as an international scale of memory."

The Medium and the Magazines-Paul Heyer 2005-01-01 Well-known for his work in film and theater as director, actor, and writer, Waiter's influence on the film industry has often been overshadowed by the more glamorous entertainment of his movies. The Medium and the Magazines is a comprehensive review of Wieler's career, devoted to assessing his role in American culture and the field. Visit our website for more sample chapters.

Tenderly Lift Me-Jeanne Bryner 2004 Those who teach the literature of medicine have questioned why there appears to be a lack of rich materials connecting nursing with the humanities. Tenderly Lift Me is a comprehensive and complex combination of biographic, photographic, and poetry that gives names a voice. Author and poet Jeanne Bryner has gathered photographs biographic material of remarkable nurses, each accompanied by poetry, photographs and drawings. The complete text becomes a multimedia presentation, with each chapter containing an image and informing the others. This is first book in the Literature and Medicine Series that concentrates on nurses' voices and their experiences with providing health care. It enhances and extends perspectives on how health care is understood and delivered by recognizing nurses as the primary care givers.

Glamour in a Golden Age-Adrianne L. McIvor 2011 Marilyn Monroe, Marlene Dietrich, and Greta Garbo, Anne Twelley, Marie Wormer, and Myrna Loy, Jean Harlow, and Gary Cooper. Marlene Dietrich-Steven Bach 2013-11-30 From the stages of Berlin to radio fame and television stardom, Steven Bach reveals the fascinating woman behind the mythic Marlene Dietrich in a biography that will stand as the ultimate authority on a singular star. Based on six years of research and hundreds of interviews—including conversations with Dietrich—this is the life story of one of the greatest movie stars and performers, an icon who redefined glamour and sophistication for audiences around the globe. In My Father's Shadow—Chris Welles Feder 2015-04-01 Of all the mythical stars and celluloid Hollywood and the床铺 produced, only a handful have achieved the fame—and, some would say, infamy—of Orson Welles, the creator and star of what is arguably the greatest film ever, Citizen Kane. Many books have been written about him, detailing his achievements as an artist as well as his foibles as a human being. None of them, however, has come so close to the real man as Chris Welles Feder does in this beautifully realized portrayal of his father. In My Father's Shadow is a classic story of a life lived in the public eye, told with affection and the wide-eyed wonder of a daughter who never stopped believing that some day she would truly know and understand her shadow and larger-than-life father. The result is a moving and insightful look at life in the shadow of a legendary figure and an immensely entertaining story of growing up in the surreal reality of Hollywood. Glamour of the Gods—Robert Dance 2008 Glamour of the Gods is a survey of Hollywood portraiture from the industries golden era, from the period from 1920s to 1960. All the photos are drawn from the extraordinary archive of the John Kobal Foundation in London. Dietrich from Carol Cristallin 2009-01-01 Few movie stars have meant as many things to so many different audiences as the iconic Marlene Dietrich. The screen character that gave her fame was a character many saw as an independent woman, a rebel and a fighter. Her films, from 1920s to 1940s, were a mix of political intrigue, spectacle and musicals. She starred in such films as The Blue Angel, Shanghai Express, and The Scarlet Empress. Dietrich was known for her beauty, her voice, and her acting ability. She was also known for her political views, which ranged from socialist to communist.

From About Last Night (which John Belushi turned down at his brother’s urging) to Zulu (in which Michael Caine was not cast because he didn’t look “Cockney” enough), this book lets you imagine how different your favorite films could have been.
