The Making of the Polish-Lithuanian Union 1386-1669 - Robert R. Poist 2016-01-15 The history of eastern Europe is dominated by the story of the rise of the Russian empire, yet Russia only emerged as a major power after 1700. For 500 years the greatest power in Eastern Europe was Poland, the country that represents the pre-1700 history of that region. This book tells the story of the making of the Polish-Lithuanian Union and the impact of Poland's strong position in eastern Europe.

The Making of the Polish-Lithuanian Union 1385-1669 tells the story of the formation of a confessional, multinational, and religiously plural state built from below as much as above that was founded by peasant migration, war, and conquest. From its inception in 1385, a vision of political stability was present that attracted a Polish-Lithuanian, Ukrainian, and German, a vision which was redefined to include Prussia in the 1430s and Louis in the 1500s. Despite the often bitter disagreements over the nature of the union, there were nevertheless opportunities for a republicanism vision of a union of peoples in one political community of citizens under an elected monarch. Robert Poist challenges interpretations of the union informed by the ideals that the emergence of the sovereign nation state represents the essence of modern political legitimacy, and presents the Polish-Lithuanian union as a case study of a composite state. The modern history of Poland, Lithuania, Ukraine, and Belarus cannot be understood without an understanding of the legacy of the Polish-Lithuanian union. This volume is the first detailed study of the making of that union ever published in English.
